About forthcoming book

The imprints of language of Cervantes can be traced back to era of pre-globalization of Indian economy and it got intrinsically interwoven into the tapestry of Indian cities ineradicable impact and blended with the cultural mosaic and linguistic landscape of the country.

Technological innovations and technology enabled tools and techniques were conceived in the late 60's and formally incorporated into the curriculum for teaching foreign languages in the late 70's. Since then, there have been several changes and developments both as regards the application aspects as well as the theoretical and pragmatic aspects. Over the period of time much profound research has been conducted in several Universities and now they are moving towards the next generation research imbibing recent technology of speech, phonetic tools and teaching-learning techniques and developed modules for pedagogy as well as for the end user. These innovations are manifested in the teaching modules which have been constructed for several specific objectives.

New education policy and advent of new generation of technology like 4G, 5G and high speed fibre optics broadband, Artificial Intelligence and IoT; together with IT companies has paved the way to develop learning management system and crate a user centric platform for effective and meaningful learning towards knowledge enrichment and create a skilled human resource to get the dividend of knowledge economy at global market place.
