Teaching:

Courses taught: General historical linguistics (introductory, advanced, seminars); diachronic phonology and syntax; Introduction to Indo-European linguistics; Sanskrit language and linguistics; Vedic and Classical Sanskrit texts; sociolinguistics from a diachronic perspective; pidgins and creoles; history of linguistics; independent-study courses on Gothic (comparative Germanic), Old English, Old Irish, Indo-European linguistic palaeontology, Sanskrit literature; Ideology and linguistic history; Indian Civilization; "Practicum" (writing for linguistics graduate students)

Course development: Courses in Sanskrit language and linguistics and in Indo-European and general historical linguistics. This includes reorganization of offerings in historical linguistics, especially development of an elementary undergraduate course meeting the campus-wide General Education requirement in Historical and Philosophical Perspectives, successful development and teaching of a "Discovery Course" section of this course for incoming freshmen, production of new visual materials, development of a course "handbook" with exercises etc., commissioning of a web-page version of the "handbook", and development of a Campus Honors Program section (fall 1999), as well as development of Linguistics 240 as a free-standing course (on Ideology and Historical/Comparative Linguistics) for the Campus Honors Program.

Development of "Capstone Courses" for the Program in South Asian and Middle Eastern Studies on various aspects of South Asia and team-teaching one of these courses (2000-2001).

Development and teaching of a course on Indian Civilization (History/Anthropology 240) as a Summer Session I study abroad course.

Teaching evaluation: Included in 'Incomplete Listing of Excellent Teachers' for: Linguistics 302, Fall 1978, Spring 1979, Fall 1984 ('Outstanding Teacher'), Spring 1989; Ling. 403 [History of Sanskrit language], Spring 1974; Linguistics 411, Fall 1978, Fall 1985, Fall 1993 ('Outstanding Teacher'); Sanskrit 201, Fall 1991, Sanskrit 201, Fall 1993

(‘Outstanding Teacher’); Linguistics 412, Spring 1993, Linguistics 310, Spring 1996; Sanskrit 202, Spring 1996 (‘Outstanding Teacher’); Ling. 403 [Language contact and historical linguistics], Spring 2000 (‘Outstanding Teacher’).
